Wake Forest Basketball History

From Bones to Skip, Demon Deacon Basketball is rich in tradition

The first Wake Forest basketball team.

How Hoops Got Started At Wake

Credit goes to a student -- J. Richard Crozier

Student J. Richard Crozier, who was also in charge of the campus gymnasium, is credited with starting the first basketball team at Wake Forest by arranging the first game in the state between two collegiate teams. Wake Forest played Guilford College (losing 26-19) as part of a four-game road trip in the late winter of 1906. Crozier, however, in a 1961 letter to Wake Forest sports information director Marvin "Skeeter" Francis, refers to his team's first game as coming against Trinity College (now Duke) that same year. Whomever the opponent, there seems to be no question that Wake Forest took part in the first college basketball game in North Carolina.

The First Great Deacon Team

The 1916 Wake Forest squad went 16-2

Ten years after starting basketball at Wake Forest, J.R. Crozier coached one of Wake Forest's first truly successful teams in 1916. Captained by Ham Davis, the Deacons put together a sparkling 16-2 record, including a 5-0 mark against future rivals North Carolina, Duke and NC State.

Crozier left his job as the Deacons' first coach in 1917 after serving in that capacity for 12 seasons.

Win No. 100

WFU opened its 14th season of basketball in 1918-19 with the 100th victory in school history -- a 25-15 win over the Durham Y.

1927: Deacons Finish 22-3

First-year coach James Baldwin leads the way

In 1927, under first-year Deacon head coach James Baldwin, Wake Forest put together a remarkable 22-3 record -- the most wins ever by a first-year WFU coach,

1936-37: Deacons Join Southern Conference

Wake Forest joined the old Southern Conference and immediately had an impact on the 16-team league with a fourth-place finish.

although Skip Prosser (21 wins) nearly tied the mark in 2002.

WF Plays In First NCAA Tournament

Deacons part of the inaugural field in 1939

Wake Forest won the regular season championship in the Southern Conference in 1939 with a 15-3 league record. After being upset in the conference tournament, Wake was one of eight schools selected to participate in the very first NCAA Tournament. Led by captain Jim Waller and his "trick" hook shot, the Deacs finished with an 18-6 record after losing to Ohio State in the first round of the NCAA Tournament.

War postpones 1944 season

The only year since 1906 that Wake Forest has not fielded a team came in 1944 due to World War II.

Last SoCon Title Goes To Wake

Deacons snap State's streak of six straight titles

One of the most memorable achievements by a Deacon team came in 1953 in the last Southern Conference Tournament. Wake Forest, led by All-American Dickie Hemric, won the title over six-time defending champion NC State and legendary coach Everett Case. In 1953, standout Jack Williams also made his debut.

1953-54: The First Year Of The ACC

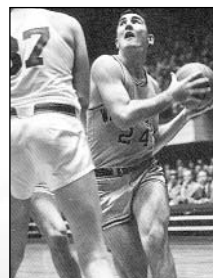

Wake Forest a charter member of the league

Wake Forest and six other schools broke away from the Southern Conference to create the new Atlantic Coast Conference. In the very first ACC Tournament, Wake was involved in three consecutive overtime games, winning two, but losing in the finals to NC State. Also in 1954, Lefty Davis, one of the great multi-sport athletes in WFU history, made his debut.

1955: Hemric The ACC's Best

All-American is two-time ACC Athlete of the Year

All-American Dickie Hemric was named the ACC Player of the Year for the second straight year -- the first two years of the ACC. He also earned the prestigious honor of ACC Athlete of the Year (for all sports). Hemric remains the all-time leading scorer and rebounder in Wake history.

Win No. 500

On Jan. 7, 1956, Wake Forest won its 500th game all-time with a 76-71 win over North Carolina in the final season of play at Gore Gymnasium.

1956-57: A Time For Change

Campus moves to Winston-Salem; Greason leaves

Wake Forest began playing all its home games in Winston-Salem during the 1956-57 season after the campus moved from Wake Forest, NC.

That same year, Murray Greason stepped down as head coach after 24 years and a school-best 288 victories. Greason, who captained the 1924 team, took over as head coach in 1934 and began to establish Wake Forest as a competitive program. Greason went on to win more games than any coach in Wake Forest history.

Also in 1957, Jackie Murdock earned first team All-America honors.

The Man They Called "Bones"

Colorful McKinney highly successful WF coach

Few persons stirred the sport of basketball in North Carolina as much as Horace Albert "Bones" McKinney.

His coaching skills were highly respected. His sideline antics were legendary. His warmth and regard for his fellow-man were without equal.

From his playing days at Durham High School, NC State and North Carolina, to his career as a coach at Wake Forest, to his familiar place behind the microphone of ACC basketball telecasts, McKinney lived his life in basketball before audiences everywhere.

Certainly he is known for leading the Southern Conference in scoring while at NC State, and for helping UNC to the NCAA finals in 1946, but it was as head coach of the Deacons that Bones became a regional hero and nationally regarded personality.

A seminary student in 1951-52, Bones was added to the Wake Forest basketball staff that season by head coach Murray Greason. He sat beside Greason on the Deacon bench for five years and even served as head coach of the Wake Forest golf team.

On March 26, 1957, he replaced Greason as head coach.

Red socks, a seat belt on his chair on the bench, sideline gestures, word games with referees all were part of the Bones McKinney basketball show at Wake Forest. Yet he knew how to motivate young men and teach the game as well.

Much more than a showman, Bones was a winner, raising Demon Deacon basketball to unprecedented heights. His teams captured the 1959 Dixie Classic and played in five consecutive ACC Tournament title games from 1960 through 1964, taking the top prize in 1961 and 1962. That '62 club, of course, advanced to the NCAA Final Four.

Bones retired from his position at Wake Forest in 1965 after compiling a 122-94 record over eight seasons. He later returned to the bench with the professional Carolina Cougars.

The beloved coach died on May 16, 1997 in Raleigh at the age of 78 after suffering a stroke. His magical touch on Wake Forest Basketball, and even the university itself, though, remains very much alive.

Consecutive ACC Championships

Chappell, Packer lead Deacs to '61 and '62 crowns

The Deacons, under coach Bones McKinney, captured consecutive ACC crowns. The 1961 team reached the NCAA East Regional finals. In 1962, the Deacs reached the NCAA Final Four for the first time ever. Len Chappell, a two-time All-American (1961, 1962), was a standout on both teams. Billy Packer was a first team All-ACC guard in 1961.

Chappell helped lead Wake to consecutive ACC titles.

Breaking Down Barriers

Todmann is Wake's first African-American player

When Norwood Leroy Todmann came to Wake Forest in the fall of 1966, he was known best for two things. He was a high school teammate of Lew Alcindor and more importantly, he was the first African-American to play varsity basketball at Wake Forest.

At Power Memorial Academy in New York City, Todmann not only played on the same team with Alcindor (later Kareem Abdul-Jabbar), he outscored the future Hall of Famer. When Todmann left Power Memorial, he held the school's single-game and single-season scoring records previously held by Alcindor.

Norwood Todmann

Todmann played on Wake Forest's freshman team in 1966-67 and averaged 23.7 points per game.

For the next three years, Todmann was a standout for coach Jack McCloskey's teams. At 6-foot-6, 180 pounds, Todmann played both guard and forward. He averaged 13.3 points as a sophomore.

In three seasons on the varsity team, Todmann played in 69 games, scored 724 points and grabbed 282 rebounds. He shot a solid 74.0 percent from the free throw line.

Todmann was not only the first African-American player at Wake Forest, he was instrumental in convincing Charlie Davis to come to Winston-Salem. Davis went on to be an All-American at Wake Forest and became the first African-American to earn Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year honors.

The 1969-70 Deacon team featured three African-American players -- Todmann, Davis and Gil McGregor.

Todmann later directed the Athlete-to-Resident program in Winston-Salem in an attempt to help the young people of Winston-Salem from low-income areas.

The Longest Game Ever

WFU-NCSU game takes 74 days to complete

Wake Forest and NC State met at Memorial Coliseum in Winston-Salem on Dec. 11, 1965. With 10:02 remaining in the first half, the Coliseum lights went out due to a transformer fire. The two teams resumed the game on Feb. 23 with NC State taking a 101-75 win in what was the longest game (74 days) in ACC history.

Charlie Davis: Scoring Machine

Davis and Gil McGregor paced 1969 Deacons

Powerful center Gil McGregor and sharp-shooting Charlie Davis of New York joined the team in 1968-69. On Feb. 15, 1969, Davis established a school single-game record that still stands by scoring 51 points against American.

In 1971, Davis became the first African-American player to be named ACC Player of the Year.

Monumental Tournament Upset

Wake Forest is first bottom seed to get a win

In one of the biggest upsets in ACC Tournament history, eighth-seeded Wake Forest edged second-seeded and eighth-ranked North Carolina, 54-52 in overtime, in a classic 1973 game. Wake scored on a last-second, length of the floor pass and short jump shot by Lee Foye to force overtime. The Deacs won the game in OT on a layup by seldom-used reserve Phil Perry. The Deacons became the first bottom-seed to win a game in the ACC Tournament.

Taking Down No. 1

Deacons get first win ever over a top-ranked team

On Jan. 3, 1975 in Greensboro, Wake Forest knocked off the nation's No. 1-ranked team (NC State, 83-78) for the first time in school history. Later that season (Jan. 22, 1975) Wake Forest established a school single-game scoring record in a 122-109 win over Duke.

1977: Good Start, Good Finish

Wake captures Big Four; advances to Elite Eight

In 1977, Wake Forest captured its third consecutive championship in the popular Big Four Tournament by beating Duke and third-ranked North Carolina.

The Big Four title set the tone for a memorable season. The Deacons advanced all the way to the finals of the NCAA Midwest Region, where they lost to eventual NCAA champion Marquette. Wake point guard Skip Brown earned first team All-America honors for the second time.

1978: Griffin Two-Time All-America

Deacs play in first nationally-televised ACC game

Rod Griffin

Power forward Rod Griffin was named All-American for the second straight year. Also that season, Wake Forest lost to Duke in the first nationally televised ACC Tournament Championship game.

The next year, in 1981, guard Frank Johnson, the "Smiling Deacon," concluded his career by earning All-American honors.

Cinderella Deacs Beat DePaul

Wake Forest knocks off Blue Demons, Ray Meyer

Playing in the NCAA Tournament for the third time in four years, Wake Forest stunned DePaul, 73-71, in overtime of the 1984 NCAA Midwest Region semifinals. That game proved to be the final one for legendary Blue Demons' coach Ray Meyer and brought instant recognition to the Wake Forest program. The Deacons fell to eventual NCAA finalist Houston, 68-63, in the regional finals. Only a 29-point performance by a relatively unknown center named Akeem (later Hakeem) Olajuwon kept the Deacons from advancing to the Final Four.

Kenny Green dunks vs. DePaul.

Small Frame, Huge Heart

Muggsy Bogues' college career ends in 1987

Muggsy Bogues

Tyrone "Muggsy" Bogues, a 5-foot-4 sparkplug, completed his career in 1987 as one of the most popular players in the history of the ACC. He also left Wake as the ACC's all-time assists and steals leader and was later inducted into the school's sports Hall of Fame.

1989-90: New Arena Opens

Lawrence Joel replaces Memorial Coliseum

Lawrence Joel Veterans Memorial Coliseum (capacity 14,665), the current home of the Deacons, opened its doors in November of 1989. In just its second game in the new building, Wake claimed the 1,000th victory in school history with an 80-49 win over Cornell on Dec. 22, 1989.

Rogers Turns Things Around In '91

First of seven straight NCAA Tournament berths

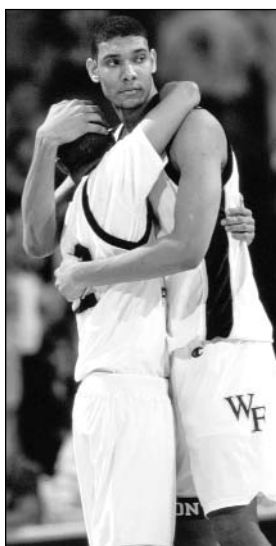

After failing to make the NCAA Tournament in 1990 for the first time since 1984, Wake Forest made the first of seven consecutive appearances and 14 straight post-season berths in 1991.

It's no coincidence that heralded freshman Rodney Rogers came on board that season. He went on to earn ACC Rookie of the Year honors, and two years later was named ACC Player of the Year and All-American. He was inducted into the Wake Forest Sports Hall of Fame in September of 2004.

1995: ACC Champions

Childress scores 107 points in ACC Tournament

In 1995, Randolph Childress turned in one of the greatest postseason performances in ACC history while leading Wake Forest to its first league championship in more than 30 years. Childress scored a tournament-record 107 points and will forever be remembered for his overtime jumper with four seconds remaining to beat North Carolina, 82-80, in the championship game. Childress scored 40 points in the first round against Virginia, 30 points in the semifinals versus Virginia, and 37 points against North Carolina in the finals. The Deacons attained a school-first No. 1 seed in the NCAA Tournament and advanced to the Sweet Sixteen.

Back-To-Back ACC Crowns

Deacons have a repeat performance in 1996

Wake Forest made it back-to-back ACC Tournament championships by winning the league crown again in 1996. Junior Tim Duncan set a tournament record with 56 rebounds, including 22 in the title game versus Georgia Tech, when Wake posted a 75-74 victory. The Deacons advanced all the way to the NCAA regional finals before bowing out to Kentucky.

The End Of The Tim Duncan Era

Deacons spend 10 weeks ranked No. 2 in 1997

Tim Duncan

Behind senior Tim Duncan, the unanimous National Player of the Year, Wake spent 10 weeks during an 11-week span ranked No. 2 in the nation. The Deacons also beat a strong Duke team for the ninth consecutive time. Duncan went on to be the first player taken in the NBA Draft.

2000: An NIT Championship

Wake Forest puts on late-season run of victories

Coach Dave Odom's team put together a late-season run to capture the NIT title at Madison Square Garden. Later, that summer, Wake's Darius Songaila earned a bronze medal at the Sydney Olympic Games as a member of the Lithuanian team.

Skip Takes Over The Reins

Prosser begins latest chapter in WFU basketball

A new chapter in Wake Forest basketball history began with head coach Skip Prosser taking over the program. Prosser led the Deacs to a third-place finish in the ACC and their 12th consecutive postseason appearance.

2003: Regular Season ACC Title

Deacons win league outright for first time since '61

Wake Forest, in 2003, captured the ACC regular season title outright for the first time in more than 40 years. The Deacons had been predicted to finish sixth. Wake swept ACC Coach (Skip Prosser) and Player (Josh Howard) of the Year awards. Howard was the first unanimous ACC Player of the Year since 1975 and became WFU's first All-American since Tim Duncan in 1997. The Deacs finished ranked in the top 10 and led the nation in rebounding.

Skeeter Francis at his 82nd birthday celebration.

Marvin "Skeeter" Francis

Few contributed more to Wake Forest and ACC

Marvin Francis never scored a basket or threw a touchdown pass, yet few people contributed more to Wake Forest and ACC athletics than the man known simply as "Skeeter."

Francis' love affair with sports began in the late 1920s, watching Wake Forest, Duke, North Carolina and NC State establish heated rivalries. In the early 1930s he sold drinks at Duke's football stadium. In high school, he managed the basketball team and worked as a sportswriter for the Durham Morning Herald.

In 1941, Francis attended Wake Forest College, where he was an intern in the sports information department under Walter "Dynie" Holton. His studies were interrupted, however, from 1942 to 1946 when he served in the U.S. Army during World War II. He returned to the military in 1951, spending 21 months as a B-29 aerial gunnery instructor during the Korean War. While serving in the Army, he married the former Ann Fields, with whom he had one son, Marvin Francis, Jr.

Between military stints, Francis graduated from Wake Forest College in 1948.

In 1954, Francis was assistant sports editor at the Herald, where he covered the formation of the ACC. In 1955 he left the Herald to become Sports Information Director at Wake Forest. He was an integral part in the transition of moving the school's campus from Wake Forest, NC to Winston-Salem.

For the next 37 years, Francis publicized ACC sports, first at Wake Forest for 15 years, followed by a 22-year stint as the first full-time media director of the ACC. He was inducted into the USBWA Hall of Fame (1989), the NC Sports Hall of Fame (1993), and the Wake Forest Hall of Fame (1995).

More than a decade after his retirement from the ACC, Skeeter continued to serve valuable roles for both the Wake Forest and ACC media relations staffs. Skeeter passed away on July 6, 2004.

Deacon Award Winners

Wake Forest has recognized a Most Valuable Player since 1957 when the trio of Jack Murdock, Jack Williams and Ernie Wiggins shared the honor. At that time, the MVP award was named the "Murray Greason Award" in recognition of the school's all-time winningest coach.

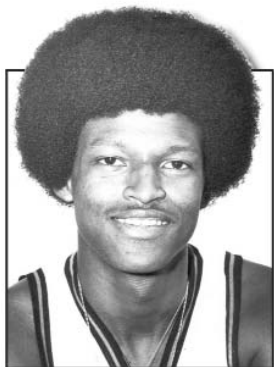

Since 1990, the Demon Deacon players voted for both a MVP and a "Murray Greason Award" recipient, the latter to honor the individual who had sacrificed the most to the squad with his determination and season-long efforts. In 1997, Tim Duncan became the first individual to receive both honors in the same year.

In 2002, the Deacon coaching staff also began giving awards for the Most Improved Player, Best Defensive Player, Top Rebounder, Highest Free Throw Percentage and Most Assists.

Dickie Hemric

1954 3-AP
1955 1-NABC; 2-AP, UPI; 4-CV

One of the most dominating players in Wake Forest and Atlantic Coast Conference history, Dickie Hemric led the Deacons from 1952-55. He remains the all-time leading scorer and rebounder at WFU and in the ACC, and won back-to-back conference Player of the Year awards in the ACC's first two years of existence.

In addition, he is one of an elite class of players in NCAA history to score more than 2,000 points (2,587) and grab over 1,000 rebounds (1,802). That career rebound total is the fifth-highest in NCAA history and his four-year totals for free throws (905) and free throw attempts (1,359) are still national records.

After concluding his career at Wake Forest, he was drafted by the Boston Celtics where he played for two seasons. His jersey #24 was the first to be retired by Wake Forest and he was inducted into the WFU Hall of Fame in 1974.

Jackie Murdock

1957 2-CV

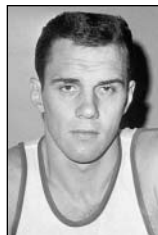

Jackie Murdock was an outstanding floor leader on Demon Deacon teams of the mid-50s and one of only two players to ever lead the Atlantic Coast Conference in free throw percentage and field goal accuracy in the same season (1956).

He was named All-America and All-ACC in 1957 after earning second-team all-league recognition the preceding campaign. Accuracy from the stripe was his trademark as evidenced by the 39 straight he made one season. That record stood for two decades until Skip Brown bettered it in 1976.

Following his playing days, he returned to Wake Forest and served as an assistant coach under Bones McKinney. He also filled the role as head coach for a single season in 1966.

He was inducted into the WFU Hall of Fame in 1982, and was honored with the basketball team lounge being named in his honor in 1990.

Len Chappell

1961 1-CV
1962 1-AP, CV, BW; 2-NABC, UPI

The first consensus All-American in Wake Forest basketball history, Len Chappell achieved that honor in 1962 when he led the Deacons to their first and only Final Four.

He was named to the NCAA all-tournament team that season after helping the Deacons to a third-place national finish. That honor followed a second straight selection as ACC Player of the Year in which he became the only player in ACC history to average more than 30 points per game for a season (30.1) in 1962.

A three-time first-team all-conference performer, Chappell ranks third on the all-time Wake Forest scoring list, despite playing only three seasons, and is the school's third-leading all-time rebounder as well.

He went on to play for 10 years in the NBA before returning to Wake Forest for the retirement of his #50 jersey and Hall of Fame induction in 1980.

Charlie Davis

1971 2-CV; 4-NABC

Known simply by Wake Forest fans as "CD," Charlie Davis is one of the most exciting players ever to wear the Old Gold and Black.

His 24.9 points per game average is the best in Deacon history and he stands seventh overall with nearly 2,000 points over three seasons (1,970). He was selected to the All-ACC first-team three consecutive years and was voted the league's Player of the Year as a senior in 1971.

One of his many scoring records that still stands is his 51-point outburst against American University in old Memorial Coliseum in 1969. He also holds the Wake Forest and Atlantic Coast Conference career free throw percentage record of 87.3 percent.

Davis played with Cleveland and Portland during his NBA career, and is now athletic director at North Carolina A&T. In addition to having his jersey retired, he was inducted into the Wake Forest Hall of Fame in 1984.

Skip Brown

1977 4-NABC

An exciting four-year starter, Skip Brown was one of the nation's premier shooting guards during his career.

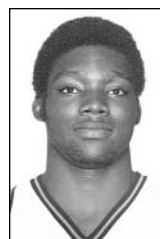

He totaled more than 2,000 points in a Demon Deacon uniform, ranking fifth on the school's all-time list with 2,034. His 846 field goals made, however, ranks first among all Demon Deacons, as does his 43 consecutive free throws made.

In addition to being an outstanding shooter, he was also a playmaker who dished out 579 career assists, second-highest at Wake Forest behind only Muggsy Bogues.

An All-Atlantic Coast Conference first-team selection as both a sophomore (1975) and senior (1977), Brown was also elected to the second team in 1976.

He led the Demon Deacons in scoring, field goal percentage, free throw percentage, steals and assists at least once during his career.

Rod Griffin

1977 1-BW; 3-AP, UPI; 5-NABC
1978 1-CB, BW; 2-NABC; 3-AP; UPI

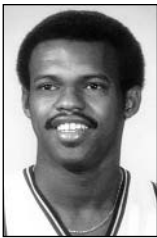

The term power forward never fit a player better than Rod Griffin, who helped Wake Forest to the NCAA regional finals for the first time in 15 years during the 1977 season.

He was named ACC Player of the Year that season as a junior, then, was a first-team all-league pick again the following year when he obtained a rare double-double as he led the ACC in both scoring and rebounding in 1978, becoming one of only two Deacs ever to accomplish that feat (Len Chappell was the other).

During that magical 1977 season, he topped the conference in field goal percentage with a 62.1 mark -- a Wake Forest record that still stands. He was drafted by the NBA Denver Nuggets but enjoyed a successful professional career in Europe.

His jersey #32 is one of nine that has been retired in the history of Wake Forest basketball.

Frank Johnson

1981 2-CV

Frank Johnson rates as not only one of Wake Forest's top all-time players, but one of its most popular as well. Nicknamed "the Smiling Deacon" for his on-the-court personality and natural flair, he was able to achieve a number of impressive milestones.

He currently ranks eighth in career points (1,749), second in steals (204) and sixth in assists (460). All of that was achieved in 120 games and 116 starts, the second-highest total in school history behind only Tim Duncan.

After gaining second-team All-ACC honors as a sophomore and junior, he was chosen to the first-unit as a senior (1981). A first-round draft pick by the Washington Bullets later that year, he retired in 1994 after helping the Phoenix Suns win the Western Conference title and reach the NBA Finals.

He was inducted into the Wake Forest Hall of Fame in 1998.

Rodney Rogers

1993 2-AP, NABC, UPI, BW

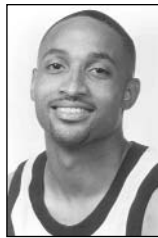

Perhaps no Deacon ever combined the qualities of power and speed as this hulking superstar who led Wake Forest to three straight NCAA appearances during his career.

Rodney Rogers started as a freshman (1991) and was named ACC Rookie of the Year, receiving 103 of 104 votes, and was a second team All-ACC pick that year. As a sophomore, he joined four seniors on the all-conference first-team, then was the only unanimous all-league selection in 1993 when he topped the ACC in scoring (21.2 ppg).

In 1993, he became the first Deacon to be chosen ACC Player of the Year since Rod Griffin. He ranks 10th on the all-time scoring list and second in field goal percentage.

Selected by the Denver Nuggets in the first round of the 1993 NBA Draft, he was traded to the Los Angeles Clippers following the conclusion of the 1995 season. He has played with the Los Angeles Clippers, Denver Nuggets, Phoenix Suns, Boston Celtics, New Jersey Nets and currently for the New Orleans Hornets. He was inducted into the WFU Sports Hall of Fame in September, 2004.

Randolph Childress

1995 2-AP, NABC, BW; 3-UPI

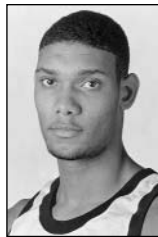

The 1994-95 Wake Forest basketball season will go down as one of the most exciting in school history and Randolph Childress will be remembered as the main reason why.

His sterling performance in the ACC Tournament, which included the game-winning jumper in overtime to beat North Carolina in the title game, will forever be etched in the memory of all Deacon fans.

That last basket with only four seconds remaining was also significant because it broke the tournament record for total points. Childress ended with 107 points for three games, one better than Lennie Rosenbluth's mark, which had stood for 38 years.

His 2,208 career points rank second behind only Dickie Hemric's total of 2,587. In addition, Childress is the school's all-time leader in three-point field goals and ranks second in ACC history with 329 three-point field goals made.

Tim Duncan

1995 3-AP, NABC
1996 1-AP, NABC, UPI, BW, TSN
1997 1-AP, NABC, UPI, BW, TSN

Tim Duncan is one of the most decorated players to wear the Old Gold & Black. He led Wake Forest to four straight 20-win seasons and is the winningest player in school history.

At the 1997 NBA Draft, the San Antonio Spurs made him the No. 1 overall pick in the draft. In his rookie season he was named the NBA's Rookie of the Year, in addition to earning a spot on the All-NBA First Team. Twice he led the Spurs to the World Championship while being named the NBA Finals MVP. Duncan played in the 2004 Olympics.

In 1997, he earned first-team All-America honors for the second straight season and was the consensus National Player of the Year. During the year, he became the 10th player in NCAA history to reach the 2,000 points/1,500 rebounds plateau. His skills did not end at scoring and rebounding as he owns 481 career blocks to rank second in the NCAA annals. He recorded a block in 127 of his 128 career games and was also one of the Deacs' leading passers as he led the team in assists in 1997 with 98.

Josh Howard

2003 1-AP, NABC, TSN, ESPN, CNN, BD, Wooden

One of the most athletic and versatile players in Wake Forest history, Josh Howard was a consensus first team All-American in 2003.

Howard was named ACC Player of the Year in 2003 and was the first unanimous selection since NC State's David Thompson in 1975. He was named to several All-American teams including the Associated Press team and he was named national player of the year by four different sources.

Howard left Wake Forest as one of just four players in the history of the ACC to accumulate 1,000 points, 500 rebounds, 200 assists, 200 steals and 100 blocked shots. Howard and Duke's Shane Battier are the only players to produce those numbers and also make 100 career three-point field goals.

After helping Wake win the 2000 NIT title, Howard led the Deacons to three straight NCAA Tournament appearances. In 2003, Wake Forest won the ACC regular season title outright for the first time in 41 years. He was selected in the first round of the 2003 NBA Draft by the Dallas Mavericks.

About The Hall

The 99 individuals listed at left represent Wake Forest University's Sports Hall of Fame, established in 1970 with the induction of former basketball coach Murray Greason, late football star Brian Piccolo, former football coach Peahead Walker, and former director of athletics Jim Weaver, who later became the first commissioner of the ACC. Twenty individuals associated with the Deacon men's basketball program have been enshrined in the Hall of Fame, starting with Murray Greason, who was inducted in 1970.

The Hall of Fame Committee, which meets annually to determine worthy candidates for induction, consists of director of athletics Ron Wellman, senior associate athletic director/senior woman administrator Barbara Walker, faculty athletic chair (and committee chair) Dr. Richard Carmichael, Jim Abernathy, Bryan Andrews, Steve Bowden, Ed Bradley, Skip Brown, Dot Casey, Ashby Cook, Abe Elmore, Murray Greason, Jr., Dave Harris, Bill Hensley, Larry Hopkins, Linwood Holt, Jane Jackson, Costi Kutteh, Anne Philpott, Jody Puckett, Dr. Jack Sawyer, Jerry West and Frank Wyatt.

Anyone can nominate a person to the Hall of Fame. Eligibility for Hall of Fame members is defined by 10 criteria, which include being out of school for 10 years (or deceased); receiving national recognition as an athlete, coach or administrator; being of good character and reputation; and having no stronger connection with another university.

1961 ACC Champions

March 2-4, 1961 / Raleigh, NC

- First-round bye
- Wake Forest 98, Maryland 76
- Wake Forest 96, Duke 81

The Atlantic Coast Conference was in its eighth year and Wake Forest was still searching for its first league championship.

The efforts of Murray Greason, the all-time winningest coach in Demon Deacon basketball history, were not enough in the 1950s.

Greason turned the coaching reins over to his assistant Bones McKinney prior to the 1957-58 season and McKinney guided the Deacs to a Dixie Classic title two years later. Yet in the championship contest of that season's ACC Tournament (1960), Wake Forest fell to Duke, 63-59.

Many of the leading characters from the 1960 club returned the next year, though, and expectations were high for a return to the tourney's final day.

Wake Forest enjoyed another good regular season, compiling a 15-10 record against an extremely difficult schedule. The Deacons finished second in the '61 ACC race, however, with an 11-3 mark, one game behind North Carolina, which won 12 of its 14 league outings.

The Tar Heels would not be a factor in the Tournament, though. They were serving an NCAA probation and did not participate. That left seven member schools and gave Wake Forest the number-one seed, which in that year was especially beneficial since it included a first-round bye and guaranteed the Deacons a free ticket to the semifinals.

In the semifinal round, Wake met Maryland, an opponent it had defeated by 12 and nine points during the regular season. The third meeting would be no different; in fact, the Deacs would dominate the Terrapins and win going away, 98-76, behind the outstanding play of Len Chappell.

Chappell scored 34 points, hitting 10-of-16 field goal attempts and 14-of-17 free throws, and grabbed a game-high 16 rebounds. Dave Wiedeman contributed 20 points and nine rebounds.

The championship game figured to be much more challenging. Wake Forest would have to beat its 1960 nemesis Duke in order to claim the crown and the two teams had split their two meetings earlier in the year.

But this time the Deacons were not to be denied. They broke open an early 13-13 tie with six straight points and led by nine, 42-33, at halftime. The lead would grow to as many as 20 in the second half and Wake eventually recorded its first ACC championship by a 96-81 margin over the Blue Devils.

"Everybody was in the flow, and in the second half we got away from them pretty good," McKinney recalled later. "We just felt like we knew we were going to win that game."

Actually the most distressing time of the entire championship experience in 1961 came at halftime of the title contest. A fired-up group of Deacons burst out of their locker room in N.C. State's Reynolds Coliseum only to see team co-captain Alley Hart knocked into a glass water cooler located near the dressing room door. The cooler broke and a piece of glass cut Hart's hand.

Hart obviously was not his usual effective self, scoring only six points. Chappell, though, displayed his ACC Player of the Year form for the second straight day, scoring 33 points and collecting 14 rebounds to lead all players in both categories.

Billy Packer, Hart's running mate in the Deacon backcourt, scored 16 points, while bruising forward Bill Hull achieved a double-double with 12 points and 12 rebounds.

Back on the Wake Forest campus in Winston-Salem, the student body celebrated with a vigor worthy of the accomplishment. One ambitious celebrant even scaled the front of Wait Chapel and covered the word "Wait" with a sign of his own, "Len."

Chappell was named the Tournament's Most Valuable Player and was joined on the all-tournament first team by Packer. Wiedeman was named to the all-tourney second team.

1962 ACC Champions

March 1-3, 1962 / Raleigh, NC

- Wake Forest 81, Virginia 58
- Wake Forest 88, South Carolina 75
- Wake Forest 77, Clemson 66

Winning the first one in 1961 was hard enough, but repeating as ACC champions? The idea certainly was not out of the question. After all, the Demon Deacons had eight lettermen returning, led by All-American Len Chappell, as well as backcourt ace Billy Packer and sparkplug Dave Wiedeman.

Add the towering Bob Woollard and sophomore standout Frank Christie and veteran coach Bones McKinney had a team that most felt could challenge not only for ACC honors, but perhaps even the national championship as well.

And in the '61-62 preseason poll, there indeed was Wake Forest, voted as the third-ranked team in the country. Only Ohio State (#1) and Cincinnati (#2) were picked higher.

But preseason projections do not a successful team make, and the Deacs struggled early that year. A disappointing 22-point loss to Ohio State in Winston-Salem in December began a string of four losses in five games. At one point in January, the Wake Forest record was an unimpressive 9-8. That mark included two losses to Duke, which was the prime contender to replace the Deacons as league champs.

However, McKinney kept working with his veteran club and it roared into the 1962 ACC Tournament on a six-game winning streak, a late-season surge that improved the Deacons' conference record to 12-2 and earned them the No. 1 seed.

Wake cruised by opening round opponent Virginia, 81-58, behind 18 points from both Packer and Chappell. The next night the Deacons trailed South Carolina at halftime by two (43-41), but rallied behind the brilliant play of their All-American to register an 88-75 triumph. Chappell tallied 38 points in that contest, leading a group of four different Deacs in double figures.

Wake Forest's surprising foe in the title game, though, was Clemson, which had upset Duke in the semifinals, 77-72. Coach Press Maravich had his Tigers utilizing a combination man-to-man and zone defense called the "Junto," and it worked for a while even against the favored Deacons.

The defending champions trailed, 19-17, but then hit 11 of their last 13 field goal attempts of the first half to roll to a 43-28 lead at intermission. Upset-minded Clemson would draw no closer than 12 during the second half as the Atlantic Coast Conference trophy once again went back to Winston-Salem with the Deacons. Final score -- Wake 77, Clemson 66.

Chappell, the Tournament MVP for the second consecutive year, once again was the scoring leader with 31 points, while Packer added 21. Both were named to the all-tournament first team, while Wiedeman was awarded second-team honors for the second season in a row.

"We were the best team," Packer says in looking back at that period in his career. "We really had the best team for three years running, including 1960 and 1961. We were just supposed to win."

Chappell agrees with him, but recalls that the Deacons of 1962 really did not fully appreciate what they had accomplished by capturing back-to-back titles.

"We knew it was our job to win that ACC Tournament," Chappell says. "It was just a matter of course, but at that time the ACC didn't have the long history that it now has. We really didn't know what we had achieved."

The Demon Deacons of 1962, of course, went on to win three straight games in the NCAA Tournament, including overtime decisions over Yale and St. Joseph's. Their third postseason victory over Villanova took them into the Final Four where they met that same Ohio State team that had beaten them at the beginning of the 1961-62 season.

The Buckeyes did it again, but Wake Forest bounced back to down UCLA for third place in the national tourney and finish the year where it was picked in that preseason poll months before.

1995 ACC Champions

March 9-12, 1995 / Greensboro, NC

- Wake Forest 87, Duke 70
- Wake Forest 77, Virginia 68
- Wake Forest 82, N. Carolina 80 (ot)

The sellout crowd of 23,311 was standing in anticipation as the teams broke their respective huddles for the final 21.7 seconds of the 1995 ACC Tournament championship game.

Wake Forest and North Carolina had already battled to a deadlock through 44 minutes and were tied 80-80 in overtime. And while the issue was still in doubt, there was no secret as to who was going to take the deciding shot -- Randolph Childress.

After all, his performance to that point is something people still refer to with great admiration today. He scored a career-high 40 points against Duke in the opening round, and then added 30 more in the Deacons' semifinal win over Virginia. He was at 35 when the ball was inbounded for Wake Forest's final possession.

Even though North Carolina did its best to keep him from getting the ball, Childress got open and sliced down the lane for a floating 12-foot jumper that swished through the basket and sent the Demon Deacon faithful into a frenzy. Those two points broke Lennie Rosenbluth's 38-year old tournament record of 106 points by one and gave Wake Forest its first ACC crown since 1962.

North Carolina had four seconds left and made the most of it. Jerry Stackhouse launched a three-pointer and Pearce Landry had a desperation tip at the buzzer, but neither dropped. That set off a postgame celebration which ended with Childress being named the most valuable player and Wake Forest gaining a No. 1 seed in the NCAA Tournament.

Former Deacon and current television analyst Billy Packer called it one of the greatest individual performances he had ever seen in an ACC Tournament. Packer wasn't alone in those sentiments as scores of observers shook their heads in near disbelief of what Childress had achieved.

It started in the opening round when the top-seeded Deacons fell behind Duke 31-13 in the first 12 minutes. After a Wake Forest timeout, Childress began to assert himself and exploded for 20 of his 27 first half points over the next eight minutes without missing a shot.

He made 10 consecutive field goal attempts to close out the half, which included five three pointers, and gave the Deacons an improbable one-point lead at the intermission.

He sent the Blue Devils running for cover in the second half as Wake Forest extended its lead and settled for an 87-70 victory. Childress finished with 40 points on 13-of-18 shooting, tying him with North Carolina's Charlie Scott for the fifth-highest single-game point total in tournament history.

Randolph Childress and Tim Duncan at the 1995 ACC Tournament.

Virginia proved equally tough in the semifinal as Wake Forest started slowly for the second straight day and trailed the Cavaliers 36-28 at halftime. Childress and Tim Duncan stepped up in the final 20 minutes, however, combining for 35 of Wake Forest's 49 points to secure a 77-68 victory.

Childress finished the game with 30 points, which included six more three pointers, while Duncan tallied 20 points, 14 rebounds and six blocked shots. Ricky Peral had his best game of the tournament, connecting on 5-of-9 field goal attempts for 13 points.

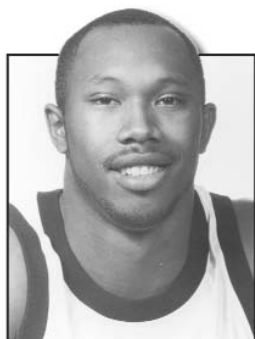

The championship game against North Carolina provided more of the same Childress heroics. He had 15 of Wake Forest's 33 first-half points, and despite trailing by five at the break, the Deacs showed no signs of slowing down.

When Childress netted a pair of free throws with 1:03 to play, it gave the Deacons a 73-69 lead, but Stackhouse made one-of-two free throws and then a stunning three-point jumper with 4.5 seconds left to send the game into overtime.

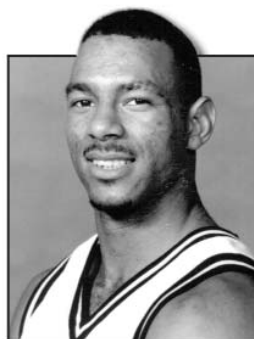

All that did, though, was give Childress an even bigger stage to perform his magic.

1996 ACC Champions

March 7-10, 1996 / Greensboro, NC

- Wake Forest 70, Virginia 60
- Wake Forest 68, Clemson 60
- Wake Forest 75, Georgia Tech 74

Fans in the Greensboro Coliseum must have felt a touch of deja vu as they sat in their seats during the final minute of the 1996 ACC Tournament championship game between second-seeded Wake Forest and top-seeded Georgia Tech.

After holding a seemingly insurmountable 11-point lead with two minutes and 23 seconds remaining, the Demon Deacons watched Georgia Tech mount a furious rally. Just like the year before when North Carolina came back from a four-point deficit in the final minute to force overtime, the Yellow Jackets were looking to do the same thing.

Wake Forest's lead was down to 75-74 with 18 seconds remaining when Stephon Marbury came down court with a chance to put Georgia Tech in the lead. With under five seconds to play he drove to the right baseline, but found Rusty LaRue on his hip and Tim Duncan running at him. His off-balance jumper hit the top corner of the backboard and caromed to Steven Goolsby, who cradled it with two seconds to play.

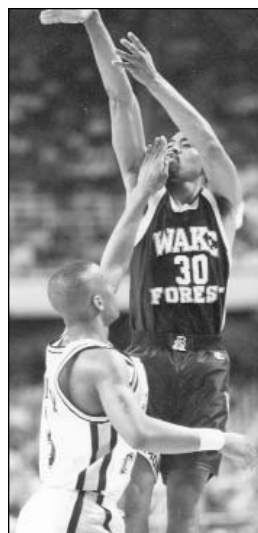

Even though Goolsby missed a pair of free throws, Drew Barry's desperation heave from midcourt failed to drop, allowing Wake Forest to celebrate its second straight conference championship and become the first school in 14 years to win consecutive titles.

For most of the afternoon it appeared as though the Deacons were going to coast to victory. They dashed out of the gate to a 14-3 lead and increased it to 19-5 after only six minutes of action. The Yellow Jackets made a run of their own and closed to within five points at 29-24 with just over five minutes to play, but Wake Forest exploded for 10 straight points to close out the half with a 39-24 advantage.

The Demon Deacon lead grew to 18, but the tide turned when Tony Rutland, who had 15 points on the day, injured his knee while driving to the basket with 14 minutes to play. As a result, the reliable LaRue stepped in and filled the point-guard slot for the first time in his career and kept the offense in sync.

Even though Georgia Tech whittled away at Wake Forest's lead, LaRue and Tim Duncan combined for 15 points over a seven-minute stretch to keep the advantage in double digits at 71-60. The Yellow Jacket pressure finally forced a couple of turnovers, which combined with missed Deacon free throws, allowed Tech to creep even closer and create an exciting finish.

And whereas the 1995 Tournament belonged to Randolph Childress, this one was all Tim Duncan's. The junior All-American set a tournament record for most rebounds with 56, which included a championship game record 22 against Georgia Tech.

Tony Rutland vs. Georgia Tech.

Duncan was a unanimous selection for the Everett Case Award as the ACC Tournament MVP and was later recognized as the 1996 ACC Player of the Year.

Besides being a force on the boards, he led the Deacons with 27 points, six assists, and four blocked shots in the title game. After Rutland's 15 points, LaRue followed with 14 and Ricky Peral with 10.

Wake Forest's ACC Tournament run started against Virginia. The Deacons broke open a 37-36 game by going on a 22-7 run over a nine-minute stretch en route to a 70-60 victory and avenged a regular-season loss from one week earlier. Duncan led the way with 19 points and 15 rebounds, while Rutland and Peral chipped in 13 points apiece.

Most figured Wake Forest would face North Carolina in the semifinals, but Clemson upset the Tar Heels in the opening round and looked to make it two straight by upending the Demon Deacons. That bid fell short, however, as Duncan had another outstanding night with 22 points, 19 rebounds, and four assists in a 68-60 win.

Wake Forest was in control most of the night, leading by 11 at halftime thanks to 13 points from Rutland. The Tigers got as close as four with one minute and 51 seconds to play, but Rutland knocked down a three-pointer to ice the win.

Rutland finished the game with 20 points while Goolsby provided a spark off the bench with 11.

Wake Forest's hot shooting continued in the title game as it blistered the nets at a championship game record 63 percent clip, making 29-of-46 field goal attempts. The Demon Deacons were even better from behind the arc as they connected on 9-of-14 three-point tries (64.3%).

The championship was the fourth in Wake Forest history and represented the second time it had won back-to-back titles.

Duncan and Rutland celebrate the 1996 ACC championship.
